

TOOTSY

<http://blog.artintern.net/sucong> 复制 | 收藏 | 生成二维码

主页 文集 图集 展览 画廊 留言

个人资料

职业视觉艺术家，艺术国际功勋博主

举报身份 申请认证>>

4290	4322	2310	611
关注	粉丝	博文	图片

转发 (0) | 评论 (0) | 收藏 (0) | (0)

daniel gonzález：米兰庭院动画

发表：2015-10-05 22:00 阅读：94

within milan's marsèlleria permanent exhibition space, daniel gonzález has transformed the courtyard's internal architecture into an cardboard environment, where a play of unexpected geometries, textures and motifs surprise visitors encompassed inside. the art artist has built 'pop-up building milan' using hand-cut cardboard, tape, zip ties, wood, glue, nylon wires and electric engines, turning the meter façade into a monumental intervention derived from the interactivity and spirit of children's pop-up books.

daniel gonzález, pop-up building milan, marsèlleria, 2015

video courtesy of daniel gonzález project

in the making of the ephemeral architecture project, gonzález has adopted techniques such as japanese kirigami (a variation of origami that includes cutting of paper, rather than solely folding it) to form folded lines that extrude from the two-dimensional space of the cardboard. these sculptural paper cuts create abstract interpretations of renowned local landmarks like the pirelli skyscraper, lambrate quarter and the torre velasca, as well as escher's paradoxes and impossible buildings' projects.

the courtyard's internal architecture is transformed into an animated cardboard environment the artistic installation, described by marsèlleria as 'an architectural model gone crazy — a surreal monument breaking into the urban fabric', inhabits the external exhibition space until october 31, 2015.

drawings marked onto the surface of the cardboard represent architectural landmarks folded lines extrude from the two-dimensional space of the cardboard sheet

the sculptural paper cuts create abstract interpretations of renowned local landmarks in milan

the ephemeral intervention takes over the 250 square meter façade of the existing building the cardboard cut-outs are treated with a white tape outline

the intervention is influenced by children's pop-up books

by night, internal lights illuminate the courtyard and artwork

the cardboard pieces are animated and move throughout the day

搜内容、找人

用户名:

密码:

登录

马上注册

找回密码

a cardboard wheel spins on the far right, transforming the space into a surreal scene

making-of pop-up building milan
video courtesy of daniel gonzález project

分类：

标签： daniel gonzález : 米兰庭院动画

@通知：

转发 (0) | 评论 (0) | 收藏 (0) | (0)

还没有人赞过这篇文章，赶快抢个沙发！

前一篇：德国摄影师拉蒙海因德尔：坦帕

后一篇: Pharrell访问村上隆

>>最近访客

评论 转发 (仅实名用户)

Copyright © 2008-2015 artintern.net Corporation All Rights Reserved 艺术国际 版权所有

经营性网站备案信息 不良信息举报中心 网络110报警服务

电信业务审批[2008]字第242号 京ICP备09032365号 电信与信息服务业务经营许可证080364号 京ICP证080364号 京公网安备11011202001647